PETS NEEDING A NEW HOME

▲ Mr Freckles, ID 47354

Look at those gorgeous wrinkles. Mr Freckles is a young mastiff-boxer cross who loves to play ball and give cuddles. He is a happy and smart dog who would benefit from training, but most of all this boy wants someone to love him and to give him all the attention and affection he deserves. See the online video of Mr Freckles in action on the PetRescue website.

▲ Teddy, ID 47261

Teddy is a Maltese-shi tzu cross who lost his home when his previous owner became ill. At only seven months old, he is a beautiful, well adjusted boy who knows basic obedience and is always smiling. He would be the perfect friend for a mature couple, a family with older children or in a one-person home.

▲ Bella, ID 41142

Bella is one of PetRescue's special seniors who is being overlooked, despite being beautifully behaved and an absolute sweetie. She's beginning to wonder if anyone will ever see past her grey muzzle to see that she has lots of love to give and would devote herself to her special someone.

HOW TO SAVE THESE PETS

Here's your chance to provide a new home for unwanted pets with the help of Pedigree and PetRescue, a not-for-profit organisation that brings together more than 450 rescue groups. PetRescue is Australia's only national, searchable, online directory of rescued animals and has saved more than 34,000 animals since 2004. For more details on any of these dogs, go to www.petrescue.com.au and enter the dog's ID number.

▲ Portia, ID 47096

Portia is a young rottweiler-doberman-kelpie cross with lovely manners. She is house-trained and quite placid. Portia is affectionate and loves children as long as they are not too boisterous. She would love to go to a home with another dog to keep her company.

Rex is an extremely intelligent border collie. He is 10 years old, familiar with basic obedience commands and enjoys walks and lots of positive interaction. He would make a wonderful companion in an older, moderately active home.

▲ Bingo, ID 47195

Bingo the Belgian shepherd-border collie cross is already a big boy at four months and is shaping up to be a confident and energetic dog. He is an intelligent dog and needs an owner willing to commit to spending time exercising his body and mind.

▲ Bear, ID 44680

Bear is a playful, loving beagle. He is a fully house-trained, independent two-year-old boy who would love to be able to spend time inside with his family. He is best suited to a family with secure fences and another dog for him to play with.

▲ Bobby, ID 47702

Bobby, a Jack Russell-staffy cross, and his sister Eva, a Labrador cross, found themselves in care when their owner fell on hard times. Both are well mannered and affectionate and they would love a home where they will be able to live together. They are used to sleeping inside.

▶ Phoebe, ID 45422

Refinement plus. Phoebe is a dog who turns heads wherever she goes. Her petite frame, beautiful manners and love of car travel, makes this extremely fashionable companion a joy to spend time with.

Ears can become a mite painful

PET VET
DR JULIE SANDERSON

YOU have to love a dog's ears. As well as being part of their personality, the ears can swivel individually like radar, pinpointing noises farther away and processing sounds from a range of frequencies humans can only dream of hearing.

It's even cooler when they appear to do the swivelling trick while apparently asleep.

It's a great shame that for many dogs, their big earflaps and long ear canals can set them up for chronic ear problems requiring careful treatment at home and ongoing veterinary care.

Some dogs are prone to ear problems because they have skin allergies — the ears are really just big folds of skin, and a generalised skin irritation brings extra trouble in a fetid ear canal.

Other common problems include ear mite infestations, infection from swimming in dirty water, or extra-hairy ears that promote the conditions in which an ear infection may flourish. Some dogs seem to specialise in collecting debris such as seeds in their ears, and for other dogs genetics is thought to play a part in ear problems.

It is normal for a very small amount of earwax, yeast organisms and bacteria to be found in a dog's ear canal. But when something irritates and upsets the ears, the cells lining the canal often over-compensate. They produce more wax and heat, which in turn creates an ideal environment for the overgrowth of bacteria and yeast. It's a party in there, which is going bad.

Ear infections can threaten a dog's hearing and herald a chronically painful problem, so early treatment is needed. The signs of ear canal problems usually involve a dog shaking its head, rubbing its ears and maybe attempting to put a paw into its ear. There may be an unpleasant smell or a discharge from the dog's ear. Worse is any tendency for a dog to be tilting its head.

Any of these signs require immediate help from a veterinarian. If it's not an ear infection, then the cause of the symptoms warrants investigation.

Dogs' ears are first examined with an instrument which involves a small hollow cone attached to a light source and some magnification. What you hope to see down there is an eardrum intact at the end of the long ear canal.

Sometimes the ears are already too painful, swollen or congested to allow much of an examination and a dog's owner needs to listen carefully to the treatment options, the home medication requirements and the risks involved in a serious ear infection.

No one gets off lightly with an ear infection, least of all the dog, but with diligent treatment most resolve well and that amazing radar action can resume.

POPPY Bull terrier staffy mix

PetRescue ID 46861

RED X-breed

PetRescue ID 47542
Red is an old-fashioned Heinz variety dog — one you might call a "Mutt-igree". Red loves people and is a fantastic dog for anyone who is looking for a true mate. Red's special someone needs to be active and smart — just like Red.

BRANDY AND SMUDGE Beagles

PetRescue ID 47541

PEANUT Greyhound

PetRescue ID 47492
Peanut is a beautiful greyhound pup who is doing obedience training in his foster home, which he shares with cats, dogs and humans. He is a little shy in new situations, but with gentle confidence-building and positive training he will be a wonderful pet.

SOLDIER Border collie german shepherd X

PetRescue ID 47622
After a life of adventure travelling around the country, Soldier could tell a few yarns to tell — like the time he had a tussle with a saltwater croc and had to be flown to the vet. Soldier has recently lost his beloved owner and is feeling a bit lost without his constant companion. Can you fill the place in his heart?

DAISY Griffon mix

PetRescue ID 47508
Daisy is such a sweet girl and very affectionate. She will make a lovely family pet; she is very playful, loves children and is good with other dogs. All she needs is a loving home.

RUMBO Greyhound

PetRescue ID 47481
Rumbo is one big, handsome boy. Only young, he is outgoing and full of fun. Rumbo is great with other dogs of all ages and sizes and doesn't bat an eyelash at puppies jumping all over him. If you're looking for a sleek and stylish couch potato with a playful side, Rumbo is your boy.

Telstra 'porno' apology

By MIAWLING LAM

TELSTRA has been forced to apologise for the second time in two months after a sexually explicit photo ended up on a Sydney teenager's rental phone.

Horrified Western Sydney parents Jenny and Paul Knight said their 13-year-old daughter Monique found the lewd image on her second hand Telstra ZTE handset last weekend.

Telstra had lent the phone to the teenager because her own handset was being repaired.

The grainy image depicts a couple engaging in a sex act and is graphic. It is not known when the photograph was taken and the identity of the two people involved is also unknown.

It is understood Telstra only deletes messages in the inboxes and outboxes of its rental phones, so photos taken with the handset's camera remain.

Ms Knight said she was disgusted her daughter had been subjected to such a vulgar image. "I'm no prude, but that photo disgusted me," she said. "It was total pornography at its worst."

The Cecil Hills family were also angry about how Telstra staff treated the matter.

Mr Knight said when he returned to the Telstra store at Westfield in Liverpool staff simply laughed.

"They said there was nothing they could do and just ran out to the back of the shop and started laughing," he said. "They didn't even want to address it."

The incident comes two months after Telstra was embroiled in a similar fiasco involving rugby league bad boy Todd Carney.

A series of full-frontal images showing the scantily-clad footballer appeared on one of the telco's Canberra rental phones after a young woman booked her own handset in for servicing.

Ms Knight however insists this case is worse.

"Todd Carney looks like an angelic altar boy compared to the photo that my daughter has seen," she said.

A Telstra spokesman said an investigation would be conducted into why the image had not been deleted.

Giving their all: Winter Solstice Ball organisers Ed Tarrant, Ben Wilford, Kate Coolican and Luke Hayson.

We're into charity, that's Y

By LISA MAYOH

CONTRARY to the image of Generation Y as being self-obsessed, many young people are digging deep to run their own charity events to help the poor.

Charity work has gone from a retirement pastime to a "cool" way for young people to gain experience in event management and help the community at the same time.

While some teens are organising their own charity events, others are volunteering for the likes of MS Australia's Walk and Fun Run and St Vincent de Paul's Vinnie's Youth.

Kirribilli 24-year-old, Kate Coolican, is one of five 20-somethings on the committee for the Jesuit Refugee Service Winter Solstice Ball, an event that supports asylum seekers, refugees and the homeless.

The seventh annual ball was held last night and sold out for the first time. About 550 passionate young people packed Sydney's Hilton Hotel to show their support for the cause, up almost 30 per cent on last year even though tickets cost $150.

"This is a time where you really watch your budget, but when you get a cause like this — and know it's all young people that organised it — people really get behind it," Ms Coolican said.

"When we all put our minds together, we can actually do something about it instead of just reading about it in a newspaper."

MOVIE OF THE WEEK

JUNO

SUNDAY, SUNDAY, 8PM, SHOWTIME
COMEDY/DRAMA ★★★★★

The Stars: Ellen Page, Jennifer Garner, Michael Cera, Jason Bateman.

The Story: A star was born in this smash hit Gen Z comedy which also wowed the critics. Page is sheer delight as Juno MacGuff, whose sweet 16 existence is turned upside down by an unplanned pregnancy. Her quest to find perfect adoptive parents for her unborn child is the catalyst for her to find love in an unforgettable film. Warm, funny and boasting razor-sharp dialogue from blog star Diabolo Cody, this one defies every convention of the tired teen genre to exhilarating effect. A big indie success story, it was well deserving of its Best Original Screenplay Oscar.

The Verdict: Fresh, funny and uplifting.

MOVIES

FRIDAY, 8PM, MOVIE ONE

Keira Knightley gets her kit off in this costume drama based on the best-selling novel by Alessandro Baricco. It follows the fortunes of 19th century French silkworm trader Herve Joncour (Michael Pitt). Wed to Helene (Knightley), he strays while plying his trade in Japan after an encounter with the concubine of a local baron.

SEX AND THE CITY

SUNDAY, 8PM, MOVIE ONE

Devotees of the long-running TV series were divided in their assessment of the fully-fledged chick flick that it became. Long and sometimes a little flat, it still contains enough designer shoes, Manhattan ambience, sex scenes and emotional dramas for Carrie (Sarah Jessica Parker), Samantha (Kim Cattrall), Miranda (Cynthia Nixon) and Charlotte (Kristin Davis) to satisfy. And yes, it does provide closure to the interminable on-again, off-again relationship between columnist Carrie and Big (Chris Noth).

THE GOLDEN COMPASS

WEDNESDAY, 8PM, MOVIE ONE

Lyra Belacqua (Dakota Blue Richards) lives with her guardian Lord Asriel (Daniel Craig). Shortly after overhearing of a plot against her guardian, her best friend disappears and Lyra is whisked away by Mrs Coulter (Nicole Kidman), who is after her golden compass. This 12-year old is caught up in an epic quest, in an alternative world where people's souls manifest themselves as animals.
