

Hi, my name is Simba

Shy Guy

Male Domestic Short Hair Cat

This handsome boy will want to hang around with you & keep you fairly close most of the time. Simba will also enjoy chilling on the window sill or balcony & watching the goings-on of the street. But before he can be comfortable doing that, he'll need you to gain his trust. We don't know all of his history, but we do know that Simba doesn't handle change well. He desperately wants to love you & to be loved by you, but he's scared of being hurt. He'll be very shy when you meet him & he'll probably spend most of his first week or so at your home hiding under the bed. Once you've gained his trust, though, this truly lovely boy will emerge & worm his way into your heart. Simba will expect to sleep in your bed & will follow you around the bed looking for warmth. You might even wake up in the morning & find him in the middle of the bed, with you relegated to the side! Simba is a chatty boy, especially when it's dinner time or when he's having pats. And he's always chattier & more interested in pats when his belly is full - food is definitely one of the ways to thi...
