

Hi, my name is Keenan

Looking for love

Male Rooster

Keenan and his 3 pals were dumped to fend for themselves, at risk of starvation or predation before they were impounded. They're unfortunately victims of our wider community's disregard for the inevitable baby boys that come when chickens are bred in hopes of bringing more hens into the world. Rooster chicks are routinely macerated or gassed when they are moments-old on commercial farms, so any impounded roos we have the pleasure of knowing were irresponsibly bred by backyard chicken keepers or hatching projects with no plan for their future and are the tip of a very sad iceberg of boys in need. Every rooster in our care was left at the pound and facing euthanasia or were dumped in suburban streets or parks, and at the moment we are at capacity with beautiful individuals waiting with us for somewhere to call home. Right now we are unable to help any more desperate boys until we place our current fosters, so if you'd like to talk about adopting Keenan or one of his friends we would love to hear from you! We have bonded teams, roos who would thrive in Bachelor floc...
